

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
CENTRAL DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
SOUTHERN DIVISION

IRENE AI-LING TANG, } Case No. SA CV 15-00044-JVS (ANx)
Plaintiff, } ORDER REMANDING CASE TO
v. } STATE COURT
FRANCIS X. SMITH, et al., }
Defendants. }

The Court sua sponte REMANDS this action to the California Superior Court for the County of Orange for lack of subject matter jurisdiction, as set forth below.

“The right of removal is entirely a creature of statute and ‘a suit commenced in a state court must remain there until cause is shown for its transfer under some act of Congress.’” Syngenta Crop Protection, Inc. v. Henson, 537 U.S. 28, 32 (2002) (quoting Great Northern R. Co. v. Alexander, 246 U.S. 276, 280 (1918)). Where Congress has acted to create a right of removal, those statutes are strictly construed against removal jurisdiction. Id.; Nevada v. Bank of America Corp., 672 F.3d 661, 667 (9th Cir. 2012); Gaus v. Miles, Inc., 980 F.2d 564, 566 (9th Cir. 1992).

Unless otherwise expressly provided by Congress, a defendant may remove "any civil action brought in a State court of which the district courts of the United States have

1 original jurisdiction.” 28 U.S.C. § 1441(a); Dennis v. Hart, 724 F.3d 1249, 1252 (9th Cir.
 2 2013). The removing defendant bears the burden of establishing federal jurisdiction. Abrego
 3 Abrego v. Dow Chemical Co., 443 F.3d 676, 682 (9th Cir. 2006); Gaus, 980 F.2d at 566-67.
 4 “Under the plain terms of § 1441(a), in order properly to remove [an] action pursuant to that
 5 provision, [the removing defendant] must demonstrate that original subject-matter
 6 jurisdiction lies in the federal courts.” Syngenta Crop Protection, 537 U.S. at 33. Failure to 7 do so requires that the case be remanded, as “[s]ubject matter jurisdiction may not be 8 waived, and . . . the district court must remand if it lacks jurisdiction.” Kelton Arms Condo.
 9 Owners Ass’n v. Homestead Ins. Co., 346 F.3d 1190, 1192 (9th Cir. 2003). “If at any time 10 before final judgment it appears that the district court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, the 11 case shall be remanded.” 28 U.S.C. § 1447(c). It is “elementary that the subject matter 12 jurisdiction of the district court is not a waivable matter and may be raised at anytime by 13 one of the parties, by motion or in the responsive pleadings, or sua sponte by the trial or 14 reviewing court.” Emrich v. Touche Ross & Co., 846 F.2d 1190, 1194 n.2 (9th Cir. 1988).

15 A. Federal Question Jurisdiction

16 The underlying action is an unlawful detainer proceeding, arising under and 17 governed by the laws of the State of California. The Complaint does not include any claim
 18 “arising under the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States.” 28 U.S.C. § 1331.
 19 Federal defenses or federal counterclaims do not provide a basis to remove an action which 20 does not otherwise establish federal jurisdiction. “[T]he existence of federal jurisdiction 21 depends solely on the plaintiff’s claims for relief and not on anticipated defenses to those 22 claims.” ARCO Envtl. Remediation, L.L.C. v. Dept. of Health and Envtl. Quality, 213
 23 F.3d 1108, 1113 (9th Cir. 2000). An “affirmative defense based on federal law” does not 24 “render[] an action brought in state court removable.” Berg v. Leason, 32 F.3d 422, 426 (9th 25 Cir. 1994). A “case may not be removed to federal court on the basis of a federal defense . . .
 26 even if the defense is anticipated in the plaintiff’s complaint, and even if both parties admit
 27 that the defense is the only question truly at issue in the case.” Franchise Tax Bd. v.
 28 Construction Laborers Vacation Trust, 463 U.S. 1, 14 (1983). There is no basis for federal

1 question jurisdiction.

2 B. Diversity Jurisdiction

3 There is also no basis for diversity jurisdiction. Every defendant is not alleged to be 4 diverse from every plaintiff. 28 U.S.C. § 1332(a). The Complaint does not allege damages in 5 excess of $75,000, and Defendant has not shown, by a preponderance of the evidence, that
6 the amount in controversy requirement has been met. Id.; Abrego Abrego, 443 F.3d at 683.
7 It is also apparent from the state court records that the underlying unlawful detainer action
8 is a limited civil action that does not exceed $25,000. Additionally, the action is not
9 removable on diversity grounds because Defendant appears to be a citizen of California,
10 where the action was filed. See Notice of Removal at 1; 28 U.S.C. § 1441(b)(2) (stating that 11 removal is not allowed if “any of the parties in interest properly joined and served as 12 defendants is a citizen of the State in which such action is brought”).

13 C. 28 U.S.C. § 1443

14 Section 1443(1) permits a defendant in state cases to remove the proceedings to the 15 federal district courts when a defendant is denied or cannot enforce in the courts of such 16 State a right under any law providing for the equal civil rights of citizens in the United 17 States. In order to successfully remove, the defendant must satisfy a two-prong test: 1) the 18 rights allegedly denied must arise under a federal law providing for specific civil rights stated 19 in terms of racial equality; and 2) the defendant must be denied or unable to enforce the 20 rights in state courts. Johnson v. Mississippi, 421 U.S. 213, 219 (1975); City of Greenwood,
21 Miss. v. Peacock, 384 U.S. 808, 827-28 (1966); Georgia v. Rachel, 384 U.S. 780, 792 (1966).
22 Under the first prong, constitutional or statutory provisions of general applicability or under 23 statuses not protecting against racial discrimination will not suffice. Johnson, 421 U.S. at 24 219. Under the second prong, a defendant’s federal rights are left to the state courts except 25 in rare situations where it can be clearly predicted that those rights will inevitably be denied
26 by the very act of bringing the defendant to trial in state court. Peacock, 384 U.S. at 828.

27 While a violation of 42 U.S.C. §§ 1981 and 1982 may satisfy the first prong of this
28 test, Defendant cannot satisfy the second. Defendant alleges that she is being deprived of her

1 rights to due process and equal protection because the California statutory provisions
2 authorizing evictions in unlawful detainer proceedings discriminate against women and
3 "ethnic-surname" Americans. Notice of Removal at 6-7. She also asserts that she will be 4 unable to raise her federal claims in state court. Id. at 9. These bare assertions are 5 insufficient to invoke the Court's jurisdiction. Defendant "must assert that the state courts
6 will not enforce [a specified federal] right, and that allegation must be supported by 7 reference to a state statute or a constitutional provision that purports to command the state
8 courts to ignore the federal rights." People of State of California v. Sandoval, 434 F.2d 635, 9 636 (9th Cir. 1970). Defendant has failed to identify any specific state statute or 10 constitutional provision that commands the state courts to ignore her federal rights. See
11 HSBC Bank USA v. Kubik, No. 13-1692, 2013 WL 1694670, at *3 (C.D. Cal. Apr.16, 2013)
12 ("Defendant Kubik does not, and cannot, identify any California state law or constitutional 13 provision that commands state courts to ignore an amendment to the U.S. Constitution.").
14 Moreover, the allegations she does make are entirely conclusory in nature. Section 1443(1)
15 will not provide jurisdiction where allegations of discrimination are conclusory and lacking
16 factual basis. See Bogart v. California, 355 F.2d 377, 380-81 (9th Cir. 1966). Consequently,
17 removal is not proper under § 1443(1).

18 Conclusion

19 This Court does not have subject matter jurisdiction over this case. IT IS 20 THEREFORE ORDERED that this matter be REMANDED to the Superior Court of the 21 State of California for the County of Orange.
